Julian Alps Association set to announce NEW 52km Juliana SkiTour, launching in time for the 2021/22 ski season

Following on from the success of the Juliana hiking and Juliana Bike trails, the Julian Alps Association are set to unveil the NEW four-day Juliana SkiTour, a 52km expedition which will showcase the stunning sights of the Julian Alps.

This year the Julian Alps Association is set to unveil a four-day ski touring expedition across the Julian Alps, launching in time for the 2021/22 ski season. The total length of the expedition is 52km, with an average stage length of 13km. Each stage should take roughly 5-6 hours to complete. For those that manage to complete the entire trail, they will have climbed 4367m and skied down 4891m, more than the height of Mont Blanc!

Four ski tours connected for the first time

Rather than being one long connected tour, it is actually four separate ski tours which can be combined to showcase the amazing landscapes of the Julian Alps. When connected, the trails stretch all the way from Kranska Gora in the north to Tolmin on the south side.

The Juliana SkiTour aims to make ski touring more accessible to a wider range of mountain visitors. Each stage has the option of an easier route or a more ambitious trail so skiers can adapt depending on the conditions of the mountain. Rather than staying in mountain huts, skiers will return to the valley after each day, which will give them the opportunity to relax in comfortable local accommodation and refuel with delicious local Slovenian cuisine.

A responsible tourism product

As with the existing Juliana and Juliana Bike trails, the new Juliana SkiTour has been designed with responsible tourism in mind. When they're not enjoying the snow, skiers will have the opportunity to enjoy authentic Slovenian accommodation and gastronomy.

Skiing from a pristine winter peak offers a much more powerful experience than skiing alongside ski lifts. Snow-capped mountains can be reached on skis without the need for ski lifts or artificial snow, both of which can interfere negatively with the environment. Ski touring offers the opportunity to explore places that would otherwise be largely inaccessible while having a minimal impact on local communities and landscapes.

Poland to prioritise its city break offering in 2022 road to recovery

The Polish Tourism Organisation will look to harness the pull of its city break offering in the recovery of its tourism industry in 2022, from Krakow and Katowice to Warsaw and Wroclaw. This will involve showcasing the lesser-known cities, such as the gorgeous golden Gdansk on the Baltic coast. In addition to this, the Polish Tourism Organisation plans to work with influencers and TV shows to highlight new sides to well-known destinations and some hidden gems. The tourist board hope that the diversity of their cities, the rich historical and cultural experiences on offer within them, and their ease-of-access from major UK cities thanks to regular flights will help to position Poland as one of Europe's premier city break destinations in 2022.

NEW Polish site added to the UNESCO World Heritage list

The Ancient and Primeval Beech Forests of the Carpathians are the newest site from Poland to be enshrined in the UNESCO World Heritage Site list. The forest, located in the Bieszczady National Park, was added along with forests in five other European countries. ### CzechTourism Announces NEW 2022 Tourism Focus: Traditions

CzechTourism, the tourism board of the Czech Republic, has announced their new marketing strategy for 2022, which will be centred on Czech traditions. This overarching focus will act as a guiding force for campaigns that promote the Czech Republic's key tourism products: city breaks, outdoor adventure, spa and wellness, history and culture and sustainable tourism.

Traditions touch every part of this historic country, from spa treatments that have been around for hundreds of years, to beer brewing techniques that have given the world the very first Pilsner lager. These traditions still shine through in modern Czech life, from a gastronomy scene that has refined and fused traditional dishes with a modern twist, to buildings and architecture that provides a new, interesting take on more traditional architectural styles.

CzechTourism will aim to highlight how these traditions have helped shape the country's tourism offering with a series of marketing social media, PR and press trip campaigns for consumers, media and trade. The hope is that by highlighting traditions in the country, it will allow visitors to not only see the best parts of the country, but to really experience them. There is a growing desire amongst consumers for more experiential travel, and this marketing focus will show there is always something new to learn when travellers dive deeper into a destination, discovering the treasures of old and how this history has helped shape the Czech Republic as we know it today.

Katarina Hobbs, CzechTourism's UK and Ireland Director said: "The Czech Republic offers an endless range of traditions and crafts, customs full of music, breath-taking architecture and unforgettable landscapes and scenery. Introducing our country and all the distinct regions that are a part of it, through centuries-old traditions, will be our main focus for next year. Whether it's North Bohemia's tradition of jewellery manufacturing and delicate glassmaking, or Moravia and Silesia's beautiful vineyards, magical wine cellars, and ravishing folklore, all of our regions and their unique experiences come with a story that needs to be explored to truly know our beautiful country."

TURKEY SIGNALS STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF UK MARKET

Confirms significant presence at World Travel Market Culture and Tourism Minister to visit on Day 2

The Turkish Tourism Board in the UK has announced that the Turkish Minister of Culture and Tourism, Mehmet Nuri Ersoy, will be attending Day 2 of World Travel Market 2021 in London on 2nd November, 2021.

World Travel Market is the only travel trade event in the UK that Minister Ersoy is attending in 2021. He will provide early insights into recovering visitor numbers from the UK to Turkey since it was removed from the UK Government's Red List on 22nd September 2021, and forward predictions for travel demand in 2022, during meetings with travel industry executives.

Around 2.5 million British travellers chose Turkey in 2019 as a holiday, culture, history and gastronomy destination. The UK is one of Turkey's five largest inbound travel markets.

Since the removal of travel restrictions between the UK and Turkey, the Turkish Tourism Board has committed to a significant presence at World Travel Market, with a 300m2 stand and a substantial delegation of 20 companies and institutions from key tourism and hospitality businesses across Turkey, including Turkish Airlines.

Media are invited to visit the Turkey stand (EU1850) and speak to these representatives about upcoming launches and new experiences available to tourists in Turkey. These include the opening of the country's first Underwater Museum in Gallipoli, Taş Tepeler-Şanlıurfa Neolithic Age Research Project, Beyoglu Cultural Route and Ataturk Cultural Center in Istanbul, and European Museum Academy Special Award receiver, Troy Museum.

All visitors to the stand are welcome to enjoy a range of refreshments and entertainments and discover the wonders of Turkey from Turkish travel experts.

From Spectator to Speaker: Resort's Path to Carbon-neutral Leads from UN's Rio Earth Summit 1992 to Glasgow COP26, 2021

Caribbean's only carbon-neutral hotel to share framework for guilt-free regenerative vacations

It has been 29 years since the world-famous 1992 United Nations Rio de Janeiro Earth Summit and Ewald Biemans, Owner/CEO of Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort in Aruba is still as inspired as the day he heard the call to action given to the world at that conference. An avid news follower, Biemans feverishly read and watched all the coverage he could find on the tiny island of Aruba as the pivotal 1992 gathering took place. Describing it as "a wake-up call," the conference accelerated his early efforts to what is now the Caribbean's most eco-awarded and first carbon-neutral hotel by 2018 and ultimately, a United Nations honoree.

Last year, Bucuti & Tara became the first hotel in United Nations' history to win the coveted Global UN 2020 Climate Action Award for Climate Neutral Now. This year, Biemans has been invited to attend as a speaker at UN's 26th annual climate change conference, Conference of the Parties, or COP26, November 1-12, 2021 in Glasgow, Scotland and expects to draw 30,000 attendees. COP26 is deemed the world's most significant summit on climate change in the race to keep a temperature rise limit of 1.5 degrees within reach cited by the 2015 Paris Agreement with just nine years left before ecological consequences would be catastrophic and irreversible.

Giving away the solution: "highly scalable and replicable" for the hospitality industry

While the topic of climate change is daunting, Biemans' appearance will provide more than hope as he will provide solid support and actionable initiatives that can be implemented in hotels and similar businesses. Upon awarding Bucuti & Tara, the UNFCCC Secretariat commended the resort for being "highly replicable and scalable," thus uniquely positioning it to help others throughout the world's massive travel and tourism sector representing 10% of global GDP. Biemans' COP26 appearance will help demystify the process of going net-zero, how to structure the necessary framework, and share how hoteliers can deliver a memorable vacation that is both financially successful as well as regenerative.

"Every day I reflect on the UN's Rio Earth Summit of 1992 as the call to action we heeded at Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort in ultimately leading us to provide a guilt-free vacation that lets guests trade carbon footprints for sandy ones, and it will be an honor to share at COP26 with others our sustainability solutions so that we are all winners, because we must all win to have a healthier, safer, more resilient future," shares Ewald Biemans, Owner/CEO of Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort. "Climate change is the largest pandemic of this lifetime."

Vacationing that saves the future

Bucuti & Tara has an eye on the future by helping guests plan regenerative vacations for the present. It knows guests seek vacations to take a break from the daily grind and often times to reconnect with one another. Vacations are a time when indulgences are given into and Bucuti & Tara is helping guests do so while still protecting the planet for generations to come.

As the Caribbean's first and only certified carbon-neutral hotel, the resort stay is already guilt-free. Now with the addition of a Carbon Offset Concierge, guests can make their entire vacation guilt-free from wheels up to wheels down.

Carbon-neutral, Guilt-free Vacation Elevated at Bucuti & Tara, Aruba

World's first Carbon Offset Concierge added as resort is honored by United Nations at COP26

Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort is helping guests take vacations today that protect the vacations of tomorrow. As the Caribbean's first and only certified carbon-neutral hotel, the resort stay is already net-zero and guilt-free. Now with the addition of the world's first Carbon Offset Concierge, guests can elevate their experience by making their entire vacation guilt free by offsetting their travel emissions. This timing complements the upcoming 2021 United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP26) where Bucuti & Tara will be honored and Owner/CEO Ewald Biemans will present solutions other hotels can adopt in the collective race to stop climate change.

How it works

Every major airline servicing Aruba offers carbon emissions offset purchases on its website. Guests can certainly select that on their own or have their travel professional do so at the time of booking their air travel. For those guests who prefer to have assistance from the resort, the Carbon Offset Concierge readily handles the request.

Bucuti & Tara helps guests discover how simple it is to take a carbon-neutral vacation:

- Step 1. Stay at Bucuti & Tara for a 100 percent carbon-neutral hotel visit.
- Step 2. When booking air travel, purchase carbon emissions offsets or select Bucuti & Tara's Carbon Offset Concierge assistance within their resort confirmation or by emailing sustainability@bucuti.com.

This new guest service is complimentary and guests will pay directly for their chosen offsets. Guests can opt-in for covering their travel to and from the airports as well as their flights. A guest flying roundtrip between New York and Aruba can offset their carbon emissions for just US $11.86 on American Airlines through their carbon offset partner, Cool Effect. A guest flying KLM roundtrip from Amsterdam to Aruba will pay only €22.40 through the airline's CO2ZERO offset initiative. By neutralizing their carbon footprints through offsets, the purchases go to verified, high-quality programs such as renewable energy through wind and solar farms, or programs that provide reforestation, protect waterways and safely employ people in different parts of the world.

This new guest service complements Bucuti & Tara's Owner/CEO Ewald Biemans' upcoming speaking engagement at the United Nations' much-anticipated COP26. Being held Nov. 1 -12, 2021 in Glasgow, the news is abuzz deeming it the world's most critical conference on climate change since the 2015 Paris Agreement. Biemans' appearance recognizes the best practices that led to Bucuti & Tara becoming the first hotel in United Nations history to win a Global UN 2020 Climate Action Award.

Vacationing that saves the future

Bucuti & Tara knows guests seek vacations to take a break from the daily grind and oftentimes to reconnect with one another. Vacations are a time when indulgences are given into and Bucuti & Tara is helping guests do so while still protecting the planet for generations to come. While it holds the Caribbean's most eco-certifications, it is second to none with accolades as the Caribbean's best hotel for romance and guest service, providing guests with a gratifying, guilt-free vacation.

The forward-thinking resort reflects what vacations will have to look like so people can continue to take them. As demand for more plant-based dining and authentic dishes soars, guests have equal access to these healthy options just as they do traditional cuisine. They enjoy amenities such as private birding excursions and in-hotel art exhibits by famed local artists rather than ATV tours that destroy wildlife habitats and the island's delicate landscape. Guests sip from reusable, keepsake water bottles rather than single-use plastic. As guests bond with staff, they're even invited to join in monthly beach clean-ups to keep Bucuti's white sand beach pristine and safe for marine life such as vulnerable nesting sea turtles. Even the in-room channel shares how they've chosen the Caribbean's most regenerative vacation experience, the only type of travel that will help curb climate change.

"Here at Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort, we want to continue helping our guests keep healthy habits portable so that when they are traveling here for a carbon-neutral resort stay, that can begin from the moment they take off until the moment they touch back down thanks to offsetting their travel emissions," shares Ewald Biemans, Owner/CEO of Bucuti & Tara Beach Resort and noted environmentalist. "We want to help them discover the joy and efficiency of a memorable regenerative vacation that protects the planet for future vacationers." To learn more, visit Bucuti.com.

Glampings in Argentina — a Growing Trend That Goes Hand in Hand with Sustainable Tourism

As of November 1st, Argentina opened its borders to the world. Innumerable landscapes throughout the country make glamping one of the best options to connect with nature and feel immersed in it.

Would you like to sleep in a huge bed in the moonlight? Impressive mountains, endless green vineyards, glorious sunsets on the horizon, star-filled skies, and the forests' pure aromas could be the scenery of your next room in Argentina. How? Glamping, the accommodation trend that allows you to connect with nature in its purest state.

If you want to travel in harmony with nature, glamping satisfies the green requirement. The areas are conditioned so as not to invade the environment using a variety of resources. For example, solar panels, recycled materials, and fine-material geodesic domes are used; local food is served, there's minimal plastic use, and outdoor activities are promoted. The aim is to reduce as much as possible the impact on nature so that tourists can responsibly enjoy the benefits of the environment.

Where Can You Enjoy It in Argentina?

1. Patagonia — Live an Immersive Experience in the Mountains

It's not surprising that most glamping has been developed in some areas of the wonderful Argentinian Patagonia. From Santa Cruz to Bariloche, Villa La Angostura, Calafate, El Chaltén, San Martín de los Andes and even the well-known End of the World, Ushuaia. Southern Argentina destinations offer around 20 glamping alternatives to admire the essence of the south from the front row. For instance, El Chaltén Camp location is privileged as it stands at the foot of the unmistakable Fitz Roy mountain peaks in Santa Cruz. If it's about sustainability, Huemules is a true paradise in Esquel. Immersed in the 6,000 hectares of the Mountain Reserve, this glamping honours this part of the globe, promoting sustainability in every detail: recycled wood, personnel trained in environmental management, waste sterilisation, and more great practices. In Bariloche, the Mallin Alto glamping is characterised by its 1,700 metres high above sea level. In Ushuaia, the world's most southern city, Llanos Ecolodge decorates the winter scenery with domes that turn the mountain refuge into a perfect place.

2. Mendoza —Sleep Surrounded by Grapes and Vineyards.

Don't you find sleeping surrounded by mountain ranges, vineyards, and the world's best wines tempting? In this destination, adventure tourism in different landscapes and worldwide prizewinning wineries coexist. It's almost a must choosing accommodation immersed in this natural environment, at the foot of the Andes. Valle de Uco Alpasion Lodge is one of the alternatives if you are looking for that. Entre Cielos has high standards with avant-garde architecture, and private terraces with hot tubs. After hiking, mountain biking, kayaking, or skiing, having a glass of wine surrounded by an Andean portrait is the perfect icing on the cake.

3. North —in Jujuy Salt Flats

The Northernmost Emirate of the UAE, Ras Al Khaimah, sets Sustainable Tourism Destination Strategy to Become Regional Leader in Sustainable Tourism by 2025

Ras Al Khaimah Tourism Development Authority has announced its comprehensive Sustainable Tourism Destination Strategy that will see the Emirate become the Regional Leader in environmentally conscious tourism by 2025.

The strategy maps out steps for the Emirate to secure long-term sustainability that will drive overall tourism growth objectives and contribute directly to national and international climate change and environmental policy commitments.

The Sustainable Tourism Destination Strategy follows the authority's earlier announcement of over 20 new sustainable tourism initiatives across the Emirate marking an investment of approx. £96 million in partnership with RAK Hospitality Holding and RAK Chamber of Commerce and Industry.

The new features are split between three distinct locations: mountain, beach and desert/land. Among the mountain projects are four new staycation options, ranging from the wild to super luxury: a food and beverage village, 'Instagrammable' swing, two new attractions for thrill seekers, and a range of outdoor activities.

"This multi-million investment plan further demonstrates our resolve and commitment to tourism, despite the global challenges faced this past year that continue to shake our industry today. These projects also align with our vision and strategy moving forward with our new brand identity, based on the destination's natural topography – the sea, desert and of course, our spectacular mountains – as well as our desire to progress, grow and evolve in tune with tourism aspirations and needs," said Raki Phillips, CEO of the Ras Al Khaimah Tourism Development Authority.

To reposition itself as a nature-centric sustainable destination, RAKTDA has also adopted a new vision and strategy. The new positioning has since captured the imagination of a growing segment of travellers who desire something different in the new normal – one that is defined by sustainability, wellness, adventure and unchartered moments. As a result, Ras Al Khaimah has emerged stronger than ever as a destination. The launch of its new brand vision and strategy, coupled with its world class safety protocols, ongoing innovations and communication, has led to the highest number of visitors ever recorded to the Emirate in July. The Emirate also achieved a visitor satisfaction score of 98% for the first half of 2021, the highest ever percentage reported for the destination.

Ras Al Khaimah is also strengthening its hospitality infrastructure through new hotels, such as the Hampton by Hilton Al Marjan Island which opened this summer 2021, comprising of 515 rooms, the largest Hampton by Hilton globally and the first to offer an all-inclusive resort concept.

Other upcoming openings include the Banan Beach Glamping Resort, opening at the end of 2021, offering visitors the chance to enjoy a haven of relaxation with sustainably built chalets and tepee designed tents, along with the Radisson, Mövenpick InterContinental, Anantara and Sofitel brands, also set to join Ras Al Khaimah's diverse accommodation portfolio.

An Unorthodox DMC

After participating in the virtual WTM London in 2020, we were told by agents that our collection of, award winning, tours was not enough, we needed to bundle them into packages which would also include hotels.

"We" is not your average travel company, it's a collective of tour guides, working together offering private tours in the Old City in Jerusalem and a daily Boutique Tour from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.

The custom-made software was created and offered by serial entrepreneur Menno de Vries, who is a licensed tour guide himself and has over 25 years' experience in the world of hospitality.

Every booking has its own dedicate professional guided assigned to it, being responsible for all communications. Some traditional agents have to get used to it or simply refuse this direct contact with their clients.

We firmly believe that direct contact with the executing professional guarantees quality of, means personal attention and most of all no tricks and surprises, with the aim of exceeding expectations.

TripAdvisor Travellers' Choice put us in the list of Top Experiences in the Middle East, for the last two years, and on WTM 2021, as an exhibitor in the official Israel Pavilion, we are ready to present ourselves as a full-service DMC but in different way from what is generally accepted.

ECOMMPAY – an international payment service provider and direct bank card acquirer will introduce a bespoke and ready-to-go payment solution for online travel agencies, hospitality and business aviation — Timeline, at WTM London in November.

The solution provides an immediate payment experience for end-consumers and saves up to 30 minutes on each booking confirmation or prepayment, whilst also addressing the impact that no-shows and spread bookings have on travel businesses with a payment link expiration option.

Key features of Timeline include:

3DSecure processing protects travel businesses from chargebacks by providing a liability shift from the merchant to the card issuer, adding an extra layer of fraud prevention.

Contactless payments — In a world that is learning to live with Covid, safety and wellbeing are paramount. Payment links offer a contactless solution via Apple, Google, Crypto and Open Banking.

RateGain Launches revAl to Transform Demand Forecasting and Price Optimization for Car Rentals

RateGain Technologies announced at the 2021 International Car Rental Show the launch of revAI, the first end-to-end AI-powered demand forecasting and price optimization platform for car rentals to make every forecast profitable.

The summer of 2021 witnessed a surge in car rental demand, with most travelers experiencing supply shortages, highlighting the problematic process of forecasting demand accurately and managing fleets more precisely. This supply-demand gap limits revenue maximization opportunities for car rental operators.

revAl solves revenue leakage by leveraging 25 demand indicators that drive hyper-local demand at a city level to help car rental operators clearly understand the market potential and adjust their strategy to reach their maximum revenue potential in any given day. However, unlike most demand forecasting solutions, revAl goes a step further and combines a price optimization module, which enables revenue managers to capture the incremental market share through an Al-driven-price recommendation engine.

The platform drives automation and digitization. It is aimed to help revenue managers eliminate manual processes such as complex spreadsheets and multiple data sources. revAl provides revenue managers with one single platform to understand demand, determine their pricing strategy and let the system execute that strategy seamlessly to stay ahead and drive recovery through sophisticated machine learning and artificial intelligence framework.

Commenting on the launch, Harmeet Singh, Group CEO, RateGain, said, "Car rentals are one of the hardest hit by demand volatility and have very little bandwidth or technology support to adapt. With revAI, we are committed to changing that. Our solution will essentially bridge the gap between forecast and revenue maximization by ensuring that every rental is profitable, reduces time, effort and improves margins."

revAl is integrated with leading industry partners allowing independent operators and franchisees to start realizing the benefits and learn how your team can leverage and bring technology-powered transformation to your car rental revenue management and pricing strategy in the post COVID era. ## How technology can tackle a serious lack of staff in the tourism industry

A huge lack of workers is currently the biggest barrier travel companies are facing globally, and the biggest long-term threat to the hospitality and tourism industry development. As soon as the pandemic started, the tourism staff either lost their jobs or were put on furlough. And as soon as they got a chance, workers found new jobs, mostly outside of the tourism industry, aiming for a less risky sector during the travel-restrictive times.

Even though traveling is getting back to normal and bookings have started growing rapidly in 2021 vs 2020, most of the tourism companies are struggling, as they have no workers to focus on delivering the best experience to their customers. On the other side, customers' expectations and needs have also changed:

"Unlike in previous crises, where travelers' spending power was weakened, this one has irrevocably changed consumer behavior, decision-making processes, and values. Digital technologies have entered all aspects of everyday life, from researching, collaborating, ordering, and purchasing whatever is needed. These new habits will become necessary for travel companies as well. Travelers expect an on-demand and foremost personalized service with seamless communication through various channels." - said Iva Vodopija, head of Sales Operation in Lemax for Netokracija earlier this month.

While travelers are looking for more unique, personalized offers, free cancellations and rebookings, digital presence and faster responses from agencies, etc; travel companies seek to succeed in the post-pandemic times. But they need to adapt to the new demand quickly while lacking workers to do so.

This crucial issue can be tackled with the help of technology. The industry is already well behind others when it comes to technology adoption, let alone transformation.

"It is about mindset shift, having technology and people co-exist, using technology to automate and streamline administration and back-office processes, and focusing more on cost savings and customer experiences."

By implementing automation and digitalization of business processes, travel companies can operate faster and be focused on the quality of their products and satisfying the needs of the new generation of travelers. Just one of the examples is a tour operator No. 8 from New Zealand who managed to grow their sold tours by 43% and their profit by 20% - in the middle of a pandemic.

"Tour operators who are ready for this new demand will be the winners, and those who did not take advantage of this moment will soon cease to exist," concludes Iva.

Covid-19 success story: How this tour operator grew their business in the middle of a pandemic

While most of the travel agencies, tour operators and destination management companies were struggling to survive during 2020 (and they still are due to the lack of staff) here's a very bright example of a tour operator who not only managed to survive, but to grow their business.

No. 8 Tours is specialized in the day and multi-day excursions for the senior community throughout New Zealand. With hard work and a successful formula, since 2008 they've grown to be one of New Zealand's largest travel clubs for seniors. In order to enable scaling of the business and increase the quality of the service provided to their travelers, they decided to invest in technology and look for software that can support a large number of unique tours that they were doing manually in giant spreadsheets. Soon they implemented Lemax software, which turned out to be an integral part of the business success once the Covid-19 pandemic started.

When the lockdown occurred, they were facing a large number of cancellations. They gave their customers the option to postpone the tour or to claim their insurance. By managing all that through sophisticated software, they were able to keep track of what's booked, paid, rescheduling of the tour, or claiming the insurance. This overview and seamless process vastly minimized the negative effect that the lockdown had on their business.

"Had we not had Lemax, trying to keep a handle on what someone paid, who's transferring their booking on a later date and who's claiming insurance would be impossible. Lemax helped us do that seamlessly", said Andy Somerville, co-founder and CEO of No.8 Tours.

By doing all of that, Lemax also allowed them to get ahead of the competition. "Lemax allowed us to be creative, and put more products out there. Our calendar is now full and we don't have any room for new tours" says Andy.
